In a sermon a few year ago, Steve Shepherd shared the following illustration: Tomas Monaghan is the founder, president, and chief executive officer of Domino's Pizza. From 1970 to 1985, Domino's grew from a small debt-ridden chain to the second largest pizza company in America.

When asked to account for the phenomenal growth of the company, Monaghan explained, "I programmed everything for growth." And how did he plan for growth? "Every day we develop people—the key to growth is developing people. Not a special cheese, not a tasty crust, not fast delivery schedules, but people!"

Monaghan is absolutely correct. People are important. It's always good to think of others, to love others, to serve others. But it's also good to remember others. In the Apostle Paul's letters he often spoke of "remembering" his coworkers and colleagues in prayer. Remembering others is important, and that's what Memorial Day calls us to do. Someone has well said, "Say goodbye to me, but not to the thought of me!"

On Memorial Day we need to remember our deceased veterans, family members and friends. We need to thank God for those brave soldiers who have suffered and died for our country and its freedoms, and for our loved ones and friends who have passed into the presence of God and have greatly shaped our lives.

While Memorial Day has become a marker for the beginning of summer vacations, it was originally set aside as a marker to remember and to appreciate the lives and sacrifices of those who gave so much to make life better for us. So let us remember! Have a happy Memorial Day! Jim Nelson
